

Besqab is building 47 new homes in Aspudden in Stockholm

The CEO of Besqab AB (publ) ("Besqab") Magnus Andersson and Anders Österberg, Chairman of the Development Board in the City of Stockholm, started with a ceremony the housing project of 47 new homes in the popular district Aspudden in Stockholm.

With an "infill project", Besqab is building two houses including 47 condominiums in the corner of Sigfridsvägen/Schlytervägen. Project production started in Q3 2024 and will be completed in mid 2026. The houses are built according to the Swan eco label and gets a facade to blend in with the existing buildings.

Magnus Andersson, CEO Besqab:

"Aspudden is a popular district nearby public transports, green areas, shops and restaurants and we are happy to be able to start a new housing project right here. It enables more people to live and stay in Aspudden. We have prioritized larger apartments with plenty of light and well-sized balconies. We have a great interest in the project and about half of the homes have already been sold."

Anders Österberg, Chairman of the Development Board in the City of Stockholm:

"Stockholm is an attractive city where many people want to live, and we in the City of Stockholm wants to ensure that more homes are being built. Therefore, it is extra gratifying to see housing projects that are not only planned but also really started. Here in Aspudden there is also much of what Stockholm can offer in terms of services but also the nature and water nearby."
